Report of Bank Failure Denied by Corporation Commission.

Raleigh, March 3 .- Concerning the report that the Granite Falls Savings and Trust Company at Haw River, had failed and been closed by the Corporation Commission, with a receiver in charge, Chairman McNeill says there is nothing in the report as to the commission taking any action.

He says further that if there was anything wrong with the bank the commission would have been advised.

The Haw River Failures.

B. S. Robertson, cotton manufacturer, of Haw River, was on his own petition adjudged a bankrupt in United States Bankruptcy Court yesterday by Judge Jas. E. Boyd. The assets are estimated at $2,500, while the liabilities are about $280,000. John A. Trollinger, a cotton manufacturer of Haw River, was also adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition by Judge Boyd. The assets in this case are $23,000, while the liabilities are about $246,000. The matters were referred to G. S. Ferguson, re-

GRAND JURY REPORT SCORES CONDITION OF COURT HOUSE AND JAIL

Jury Found Little to Commend in Its Investigations---County Offices Found In Good Condition --- Sheriff Jones Takes Issue With Jary.

The Grand Jury yesterday afternoon | tating the whites and blacks mingling filed into Superior Court and made its together during the day. report, which was declared by many to have been the most thorough one presented in years. Judge Daniels complimented the jurors for the thoroughness of their work and thanked them for their services. He said that if all grand juries were to look into matters as closely as they had done, the conditions exisiting in many counties would instructed the clerk to furnish the chairman of the County Commissioners with a copy and the instructions of the court that the recommendations be given close attention. The report follows:

The County Home.

The county home is in good condition, clean, comfortably warm, and the incolored. We commend the work that is being done there.

The Workhouse.

The place is well kept. The management is efficient. The work of the place is handicapped by a very small cook stove, there being only 4 holes on top with a small oven inside. The oven is too small to bake bread for 26 people without repeating the process several times at each meal. Much valuable time is lost, especially in the mornings, waiting on this small stove. We think this should be remedied at once.

Another matter of very great im portance is the sending of persons to the workhouse afflicted with loathsome diseases of a more or less contagious character. There are four or five of these people there now, both men and women, who are unable to work. These unclean people are living daily in the same quarters with other inmates. It is the sense of the Grand Jury that if these afflicted people are to be sent to the workhouse, separate quarters should be provided for them. The four inmates there now, and the one sent down by this court, are unfit to live among people, though they are of the criminal class, and should be removed, even if a commuting of the sentence is necessary. This is a very grieviuos matter and should be remedied at once.

The convict quarters are in good condition, the men seem to be well cared Guilford's representatives in the Legis- as now constituted, the Grand Jury has lature asking that the jurisdiction of been clipped of presentment power in for, and the whole working force is well organized. Jail In Bad Condition.

The jailor has been sick about two weeks, and is still confined to his bed. We did not see that a deputy jailor was in charge; in fact a boy and a trusty convict who works about the jail were the people in active charge of the jail March 2, 1911. Although snow lay on the ground more or less, and the weather was cold, there was no heat on the second floor of the jail, and moreover several windows were down from the top for lack of cords and other fixtures. We were told that it was the duty of the trusty convict to keep up the fire but when questioned about the furnace, he did not know what the steam guage was. It is a clear case of inefficiency. Some prisoners tore up the plumbing fixtures Feb. 24 under the bath tup, and this damage had not been remedied March 2. Of the eight cells on the first floor, the white men's floor, only one of these cells could be locked at night, the locking arrangement of the other seven being out of order. The sanitary condition of the jail, especially about the plumbing, was not good. The stool on which the men get with with their feet, is not of the proper type, and a change of the style of stool would be an improvement. The window glass are broken out of the basement. The general appearnce of the jail is one of lack of care. One room only of the women's department had heat, necessi-

Want Fence at Reservoir.

The Southern Power Company has recently built a reservoir, covering several acres of land, touching the public road inside the city limits, and running along the side of the road two or three hundred feet. The road bed has been raised several feet, the mean elevation bebe remedied. He ordered the report ing from 10 to 15 feet hight. This road spread upon the court minutes and should be protected with a good, substantial fence.

Courthouse Needs Attention.

The court room of the county is not properly ventilated. With steam already in the building, it would be an easy matter to install a ventilating system of modern type, and we recommend that this be taken under consideration.

The men's toilet room on the second mates are well cared for. There are 44 floor of this building is too small for persons in the home, 26 white and 18 the demands constantly made upon it. Some of the fixtures are out of date. Some improvements should be made here. It is also recommended that a younger and more energetic man be employed as janitor in this building.

County Offices All Right.

A visit was made to the register of deeds office, the county treasurer, the sheriff and the county superintendent of public instruction, and the clerk of the court. These offices are in good condition, and seem to be accomplishing the purposes for which they were created. We note with pleasure the adoption of modern and timesaving, forms in many, if not all, the offices.

After the Magistrates.

There were appointed by the governor n 1907, 35 magistrates whose terms expire in 1913 and in 1909, 20 additional, whose terms expire in 1915. In 1910 41 magistrates were elected by popular vote-at least 41 have qualified-making a total of 96. Some of these appointed by the governor possibly may not have qualified. Only 7 of the magistrates of Guilford county made reports to this court, which we construe to mean that 89 magistrates did no business since Dec. 22, 1910, the last term of the criminal court. But inasmuch as the funds coming into the hands of these magistrates form an important part of our county accounting system, and since the county of Guilford has gone to the expense of employing an auditor to look after these matters, it is the opinion of the grand jury that all magistrates in the county, whether they do business or not, should report to each term of the criminal court; and to bring about this reform in the county the county auditor should send proper forms to all magistrates asking their concurrence and co-

Various Matters.

We made some inquiry into the inrestment of the sinking fund, and so far as we are able to judge, it is properly and safely managed.

We have examined a list, furnished by the clerk, of only 5 guardians now in existence in Guilford county; but we append a list, as part of this report, published in the Greensboro Patriot Feb. 9. 1911, taken from "report of the clerks office, December 1, 1910," showing money due to sundry persons, amounting to $3,297.78. We have not been able to examine this matter.

Again, published in the same report, are sundry assets and liabilities, amounting to $11,048.04, due to the clerk's office, which amounts have not been turned over to the present clerk. The bond of the late retiring clerk was $10,000, we understand.

Twenty-nine True Bills.

Thirty-five cases came before the Grand Jury for action during the present term, resulting in 29 true bills, 6 not true bills.

Conscience Versus Art. Shortly after Tennyson's poem "The Vision of Sin" appeared an eminent mathematician sent the poet a letter that ran like this:

"Dear Sir-I find in a recent poem of yours, entitled 'The Vision of Sin.' the following unwarranted statement: 'Every moment dies a man, and every moment one is born.' I need hardly point out that this calculation, if correct, would tend to keep the sum total of the world's population in a state of perpetual equipoise, whereas it is an established fact that the said population is constantly on the increase. I would therefore suggest that in the next edition of this poem the erroneous calculation to which I refer should be corrected as follows: 'Every moment dies a man, and one and a sixteenth is born.' I may add that the exact figures are 1.167, but something must, of course, be conceded to the laws of Camels That Ride. The Bedouins decorate their baggage camels in the most fantastic manner. A huge pack saddle is surmounted by a still larger pannier. Above this again is a sort of chair in which the rider sits. The long strips of leather hanging down the sides are simply for decorative purposes. I have seen camels when too young to go on long treks being carried in these panniers, and they are always used for the Be-douin children. This tribe has many quaint and curious customs. Perhaps the most curious of these is the manner in which they show their esteem for certain strangers. One evening when a young camel had been killed for the meal I noticed the women collecting the blood in a bowl. Then, to my astonishment, they started painting my camels on the necks and flanks with the blood. Unknowingly I was the recipient of the greatest honor that time, acting as a talisman among all the Sherarat tribe.-Douglas Carruthers in Wide World Magazine,

A Tragedy of Instinct. The processionaries are rather strange caterpillars. A single string of them five or six yards long has just climbed down from my parasol pines and is at this moment infolding itself in the walls of my garden, carpeting the ground traversed with transparent silk, according to the custom of the race. To say nothing of the meteorolgical apparatus of unparalleled delicacy, which they carry on their spine, these caterpillars, as everybody knows, have this remarkable quality—that they travel only in a troop, one after the other, like the blind of Breughel or those in the parable, each of them obstinately, indissolubly following her leader; so much so that our author having one morning disposed the file on the edge of a large stone vase, thus closing the circuit, for seven whole days, during an atrocious week, through cold, hunger and unspeakable weariness, the unhappy troop on its tragic round without rest, respite or mercy, pursued the pitiless circle until death arrived.-Forum.

NIGHT 1442

A Humble Here.

Every student of history remembers Captain Perry's dispatch after the battle of Lake Erie, a sentence terse and yet glowing, "We have met the enemy, and they are ours."

Every one remembers the great and significant result of the fight, but few worker who served his country just as truly there as if he had been on deck amid shot and shell, earning glory as well as the reward of a good con-

Just as the ships were going into action the mate of the Lawrence said to Wilson Mays, who was ill and unfit

"Go below, Mays; you are too weak

"I can do something, sir," was the stout reply.

"What can you do?"

"I can sound the pump, sir, and let a strong man go to the guns." Then he sat down by the pump and thus released for active service a man who had more muscle, and when the fight was over there he was found with a bullet through his heart.

Barred the Red Heels.

Once actors used to say that they were going "to study a part for performance;" now the saying is that one "gets up in a part," which may be one of the reasons why there were once more studied performances than there are now. As an example of how much can be safely left to the intelligence of even tried actors is the case of the Napoleonic play that Charles Frohman was once rehearsing. In the midst of the dress rehearsal an actress of supposed all around experience, cast for one of the Paris street denizens, one of the mob of revolutionists, was discovered gayly decked out in patent leather shoes with jolly red heels. "No. my child," said Mr. Frohman, "not red heels and a revolutionist too." "But they look ever so much prettier and give color to the scene," persisted the actress. "That may be," continued Mr. Frohman, "but the mob did not wear red heeled shoes; get your color with a red handkerchief or from your makeup table, but not with red heels."

Successful Trap Shooting. Aim your gun a little above the shed protecting the traps. Give the call 'Pull." Do not get rattled. Get your bird as it is going up or at its maximum height and then fire, aiming about six or eight inches ahead and a trifle below it. The tendency is always to shoot too high, not allowing for the speed of the descent. Above are going to miss. There is nothing so Home all things fire, even if you know you disconcerting or fatal to the poise as to allow a fairly thrown target to get altogether away without shooting at it at all. When calling "Pull" put some ginger into it. "Bark it," an old trap shot used to say. Don't falter it, as though apologizing for being alive. It hurts your confidence and rattles the trap pullers. If you stand with your gun ready and mumble "Pull" three or four times before the target is thrown the chances are overwhelming that you will miss.-C. Q. Peters in Outing.

Justice at All Hours.

Despite their preference for a republican form of government, the French are in some respects a conservative nation. A Paris contemporary discovered that one of the doors of the palais de justice is left ajar throughout the night. This door has never been shut since March 4, 1618, when Louis XIII. ordained that it should remain perpetually open "so that my subjects may be able to seek justice at all our estimate. We are at your service. hours of the day and night." However, an enterprising journalist who presented himself at the door in the small hours of the morning was promptly ejected by a watchman. And when he quoted the ordinance of 1618 the reply was, "If you don't clear off you'll find yourself coming in by the prisoners' door tomorrow."

A Financial Deadlock. "Who is that man who has been sitting behind the bar day after day?" inquired the stranger in Crimson Gulch. "That's Stagecoach Charley. He's in a peculiar predicament. He went to town last week an' got his teeth fixed. Then he come here an', bein' broke. ran up a bill on the stren'th of his $7 worth of gold fillin'. Charley won't submit to havin' the nuggets pried out. an' the proprietor won't let him git away with the collateral, an' there you are."-Washington Star.

"No," replied the old fashioned citizen. "It seems inconsistent to tell 'em not to believe in fairies and then try to get 'em to believe in microbes."-Pittsburg Post.

A Useful Reflection.

The Richmond Virginian says that Lorimer should resign-but Bill will not give any attention to the Virginian's advice.

The Philadelphia North American, the oldest daily newspaper in America and one of the most rabid reform papers ever published anywhere, printed a Roll of Dishonor on which appeared the names of all Senators who voted to allow Lorimer to retain his seat. The pictures of all these Senators were also given, arranged in a large figure of a dollar mark. Thirty-five Republicans and eleven Democrats voted "the stockyards boss into his purchased seat", as the North American phrased it.

The fact that Lorimer holds his seat in the Senate by a narrow margin is interesting only as evidence of the fact that the Senate is not wholly bad. He retains his seat-that is the important consideration; and, giving Bill the benefit of as much of the mantle of charity as can be stretched over his ample record of misdeeds, that is sufficient to create a feeling of disgust in the minds of an overwhelming majority of the conutry's honest citizens, both Democrats and Republicans.

The newspapers and people of this and other States are still discussing "Greensboro's adoption of the commission form of government. The commission is in high favor throughout the country, and this is doubtless responsible for the fact that Greensboro's action is generally commended. Regardless of the mertis and defects of the commission system, the opinion is very generally expressed that Greensboro's way of dealing with municipal problems is the winring way. The people of this city do things when they come to the conclusion that there is something demanding attention, and this feature of the Greensboro spirit is the admiration of North Carolina and the neighboring States.

The Times-Dispatch complains because Richmond has forty councilmen and twenty-four aldermen, composing the governing board of the municipality. No city of Richmond's size in the United States has so large a council, and some cities three to five times as large as Richmond have less than half as many aldermen and councilmen. The Times Dispatch wants the board reduced about one-half. Why not turn the management of city affairs over to three or five commissioners? Richmond is close enough to watch Greensboro's experiment with commission form of government, and it is probable that the Virginia capital will learn something to its advantage by keeping one eye turned in this direction. It is true Rich mond is a large city and Greensboro is only a small one; but it is probably also true that cities of large population need the commission form of government more than small places.

 WHAT NORTH CAROLINA EDITORS ARE SAYING. • ****************

Conscience Has No Show.

Plenty of revenue could be raised in North Carolina if property owners would give their conscience a chance when they go to list their belongings for taxation .-- Wilmington Star.

Good for the People.

Yes, the State-wide primary bill is a bad thing-for the politicians. It's a good thing, however, for the people .-Wilmington Dispatch.

Was. Warmly Received, However.

The new manager of the Greensboro baseball team reached that city in the heart of a snowstorm. We think the weather man was horrid to allow such an ill omen to occur and hope that it will be belied.-Charlotte Observer.

The Morning Breaketh.

The morning breaketh.

For fifteen years thousands of progressive citizens of North Carolina, who do believe in the superior wisdom of all conviction.

the people over the wisdom of a small GRAND JURY REPORT number of people, have been hoping to see North Carolina take the forward step of passing an act to have all parties name their candidate in a Statewide legalized primary. The promise of such a primary cheered the hearts of the voters in 1900, but other important matters pushed this less important one aside. Now it has come to the front again. When this Legislature adjourns fiftye-eight counties will have legalized primaries for one or both parties.

The Senate by a vote of 28 Democrats to 11 Democrats yesterday passed the Hobgood primary act. It is a good bill-an excellent bill-conservative and carefully drawn, in keeping with the State primary laws in such states as Wisconsin and Missouri. Nearly every progressive State in America has adopted the State legalized primary, and such wise governors as Dix in New York, Foss in Massachusetts, and Wilson in New Jersey are advocating it in those states long cursed by the worst sort of poltical machines in both parties.

Some good men in North Carolina doubt the wisdom of the law, but if they will study the benefits of the county primary in Guilford county they will see that, instead of injurying anybody or making friction, it has had exactly the opposite effect.

The only cure for the evils of democracy is more democracy. The creed of the Democratic party is "Let the people rule." The Legislature should say to both parties: "Let the people directly name the candidates."-Raleigh News and Observer.

Doing Nothing.

For many years it has been the custom of many people to abuse the Legislature when in session because of the many bills that were of state wide interest. Who does not remember all the criticism that was brought about by the legislation about railroad rates? This year the tables have turned. Harly a bill has been passed that is of more than lacal interest. Now the howlers are saying that nothing has been done, that it is hardly worth while to have a Legislature if nothing to be accomplished. And so you see that it is hard to please all the people at the same time. -Mount Airy News.

Sheriff Jones On Jury Report. Sheriff Jones was seen by a reporter last night relative to that portion of the report referring to the county jail. The sheriff stated that he had no connection with that institution further than to see that the jailor kept the prisoners safely and comfortably and supplied them with plenty of wholesome food. He stated that the regular jailor had been ill for about ten days and since that time he had had a night guard on duty; that the boy referred to was not allowed to go inside unless accompanied by a deputy sheriff. As for the heating arrangement he said it was difficult to keep the second floor heated and that the prisoners frequently pulled the windows down to get to yell at someone on the street.

As to the plumbing the sheriff said while he had nothing to do with this, that it had been found that the plumbers would have to cut a hole through the cement floor and dig under the walls of the jail, consequently it was thought best to wait until after court to do the work.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS MOCK TRIAL. Yesterday afternoon the Diaphesian Debating Society of the High School had a mock trial to vary the regular program.

M. L. Wright acted as judge for the boys. One of the members of the society was charged with assault and battery. The attorenys for the prosecution were Will Coffin, Wills Hunter and William Fisher and the attorneys who defended the accused were Doub Kerr, Raymond Staley and Robert Harris. The boys did some skillful questioning and cross-questioning. OLIVER MILLIS NOW ON TRIAL

her husband were sitting by the fire and Millis came in without a word and fired twice at Farrington, that she then knocked the revolver up and Millis fired twice afterwards. She denied that she and her husband had been quarreling

W: O. Atkins, the next witness, stated that on the night preceding the shooting, Millis and Farrington were at the passenger station. That Millis told Farrington to leave the city, saying that if he came back he would kill him. Farrington went to Winston that night and returned the next day.

Mrs. Ella Huffman testified that Millis came to her home the night of the killing shortly after the occurrence and that Mrs. Farrington came a few moments afterwards. She is the stepmother of Mrs. Farrington. Mr. Huffman, Mrs. Farrington's father, testified that he accompanied his daughter home and ordered Millis to leave his house after returning home. The murderer did so, but first reloaded his revolver and remarked that he was going to "clean out the whole village.'

Lydia Farrington, daughter of the deceased, was placed on the stand and she testified to what she knew of the occurrence. She said her parents were in the habit of quarreling. She had heard no dispute between Farrington and Millis the night of the killing.

Other witnesses examined by the State were S. E. Perry, J. W. Foust, Ashby Pegram, Mamie Willis, Mrs. Ella Michael and W. T. Rich.

Dr. J. R. Gordon, of Jamestown, was the first witness for the defense, his testimony being to show that Millis is of weak mind and could easily be led to do anything on the spur of the moment without considering consequences. Drs. Dodson and R. O. Dees were also examined to show that the defendant was not a strong minded individual. J. W. Hobbs also gave testimony on this

At the time of the great disaster in Martinique the Italian bark Orsolina was taking on a cargo of sugar there. Her captain was accustomed to volcanoes, and he did not like the appearance of Mont Pelee. Not half his cargo was on board, but he decided to sail for home.

"The volcano is all right," argued the shippers. "Finish your loading." "I don't know anything about Mont Pelee," said the captain, "but if Vesuvius looked that way I'd get out of Naples, and I'm going to get right out

The shippers threatened him with arrest. They sent customs officers to detain him, but the captain persisted in leaving. Twenty-four hours later the shippers and the customs officers lay dead in the ruins of St. Pierre.-Christian Herald.

Within the domain of the United States on the North American conti nent there have been divers independ ent republics, says Mary W. Hazeltine in Harper's Magazine, the very name of three of which is known to but a few. How many Americans of today have heard, for example, of the com monwealth of Watauga, which in 1772 was organized as an independent community by North Carolinians who had crossed the Alleghenies and, descending into the basin of the Tennessee. had made themselves homes in the val ley of the Watauga river? How many remember the commonwealth of Transylvania, which was organized in the eastern part of what is now Kentucky in 1775 and which sent to the Continental congress a delegate, who, however, was not admitted? How many have heard of the short lived state of Franklin, or Frankland, which at a somewhat later period was self created out of certain western counties of North Carolina?

A Remarkable Concert. A Carlsbad letter calls attention to a remarkable concert which took place at the Spa on Aug. 6, 1812, a program of which is still preserved in the city archives at that place. The entertainment was given for the benefit of the sufferers by the fire which had laid waste Baden and took place at the Saechsischer Saal. The only performers were Beethoven and Polledro, who played their own compositions. There were two pianoforte and two violin solos and several numbers in which both took part, says the writer. The account of the entertainment also mentions the fact that one of the interested listeners was a "tall, elderly man, wearing a great blue coat, who sat perfectly erect throughout the performance, never looking anywhere but at the stage. This was Goethe." The amount realized for the fund was about $200. The letter ends with, "Beethoven at the piano for charity

Two Dimensional Vision. Most people do not know that they ought to be very thankful for having both eyes in one plane instead of having them one on each side of the head.

If the latter obtained no one could tell that an object had more than two dimensions until experience and the sense of touch educated the brain to it. Any one can try it for himself. Shut one eye and look at different objects. They appear flat. With binocular vision two views of each object are obtained and neither is exactly like the other, so the idea of depth comes in.

The most easily shown example of the difference is as follows: Take a ring and hold it about two feet from the eye. With one eye closed it will take at least five trials to thrust a pencil through the ring, whereas with both eyes open it can be done on the

A Realistic Picture

A still life by Jan van Huysen in the museum at The Hague was injured, but it is believed that the perpetrator was neither vandal nor thief. The picture represents a basket of fruit on which a number of insects have gathered. On a pale yellow apple, which is the centerpiece in the cluster of fruit, is a large fly, painted so true to nature, so say the officials of the gallery, that the canvas was injured by some one who endeavored to "shoo" it and brought his cane or hand too close to the canvas. "A tribute to the painter's genius," says the letter recording the fact, "for which the work had to suffer."

There may be seen along the roadsides in Central America a brown wren a nest out of all proportion to its apparent needs. It selects a small tree with horizontal branches growing close tough fiber until a platform about six feet long by two feet wide has been constructed. On the end of this platform nearest the tree trunk it then builds a huge, dome shaped nest a foot or so high with thick sides of interwoven thorns. A covered passageway is then made from the rest to the end of the platform in as crooked a manner as possible. Across the outer end as well as at short intervals along the inside of this tunnel are placed cunning little fences of thorns with just space enough for the owners to pass through. On going out this opening is closed by the owner by placing thorns across the gateway, and thus the safety of the eggs or young is assured .-Harper's Weekly.

A severe attack on school principal, Chas. B. Allen, of Sylvania, Ga., is thus told by him. No Pure Water.

Owing to the extremely solvent powers, pure water is never found in nature, the nearest approach being found in rainwater, which, as it is formed in the upper regions of the atmosphere. is the purest that nature supplies, but in descending it brings with it whatever impurities are floating near the surface, which in the neighborhood of cities are always numerous; hence perfectly pure water is hardly to be found, even the artificially distilled being only approximately so.
